"Oh, a sailor's life is bold and free!" Aye, matey, and if you will set your course with the chart on the opposite page you will find true enjoyment in graphic retrospection of the eventful voyage of 1936 - 1937. Come along there, sailor, with the keepers of the H. S. Withrow's log and delve into the memories stored in your sea-bags. We will swing around the decks of our ship as we look over familiar faces, and review our many favorite activities.

In September, the Good Ship Withrow, taxed to capacity with passengers and crew, went to sea There were some aboard wishing to mold stronger characters by hard work and to increase their information, others, merely on a pleasure cruise, desiring to linger long in each port while the ship was pushing on to new, deeper waters. ¶ Over the railing hung freshmen waving their last goodbyes to fond parents who had sent forth their blessings and good wishes. These youngsters were not quite certain whether they would enjoy their new journey through education. The first day of the uninitiated seamen was one of unfamiliar experiences and indecision. Further acquaintance with the ways of the high sea, however, and contact with congenial and experienced shipmates soon caused the plebes to feel more like the intrepid voyagers they had imagined themselves to be before setting sail. ¶ Newcomers who never before had traveled on the Withrow soon perceived that she was living, animate, possessed of a soul, mostly by virtue of her principals and teachers. Without their spontaneity she would seem only a succession of vast halls leading into dull, dreary rooms. By their possession of praiseworthy qualities, by their unselfish devotion to the institution, by their constant example of culture and deportment, these guides, who point out our course, have set a goal for which all who aim may strive. ¶ Assisting Captain Peoples and his staff of instructors was the office crew. To them is due thanks for running the craft in a smooth course. Through the reliability of each secretary, the seemingly trivial necessities such as changing programs, granting excuses, developing friendly contacts with outsiders were taken care of. These assistants have become an indispensable part of the ship, to whom all go for aid when confronted by grievances, and on whom all depend to help prevent the craft from running on rocks in the fog. ¶ As expectation maintains life, so did the thought of the various outside activities sustain our hopes for a gratifying journey. By a participation in things other than the regular routine, we saw life with a different aspect. The cruise was made more pleasurable, friends became more companionable, and all were drawn nearer to the interests of the vessel. As we near the home port we assume our responsibilities more seriously. Those who never are to travel on The Withrow again fondle memories of their first embarkation. The seamen who remain, look forward eagerly.

WITHROW, LOVELY AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR.

THE GOOD SHIP WITHROW, PREPARED FOR STORMY WEATHER AS WELL AS FOR THE PROVERBIAL SMOOTH SAILING, IS A MAGNIFICENT SIGHT. IN HER HOLD ARE STORED MEMORIES OF CHERISHED DAYS.

SEEKING TO PERPETUATE MEMORIES OF A SUCCESSFUL VOYAGE, THE EDITORS AND BUSINESS MANAGER CRITICALLY INSPECT OUR SHIP'S MODEL, SELECTING REPRESENTATIVE INCIDENTS OF OUR CRUISE.

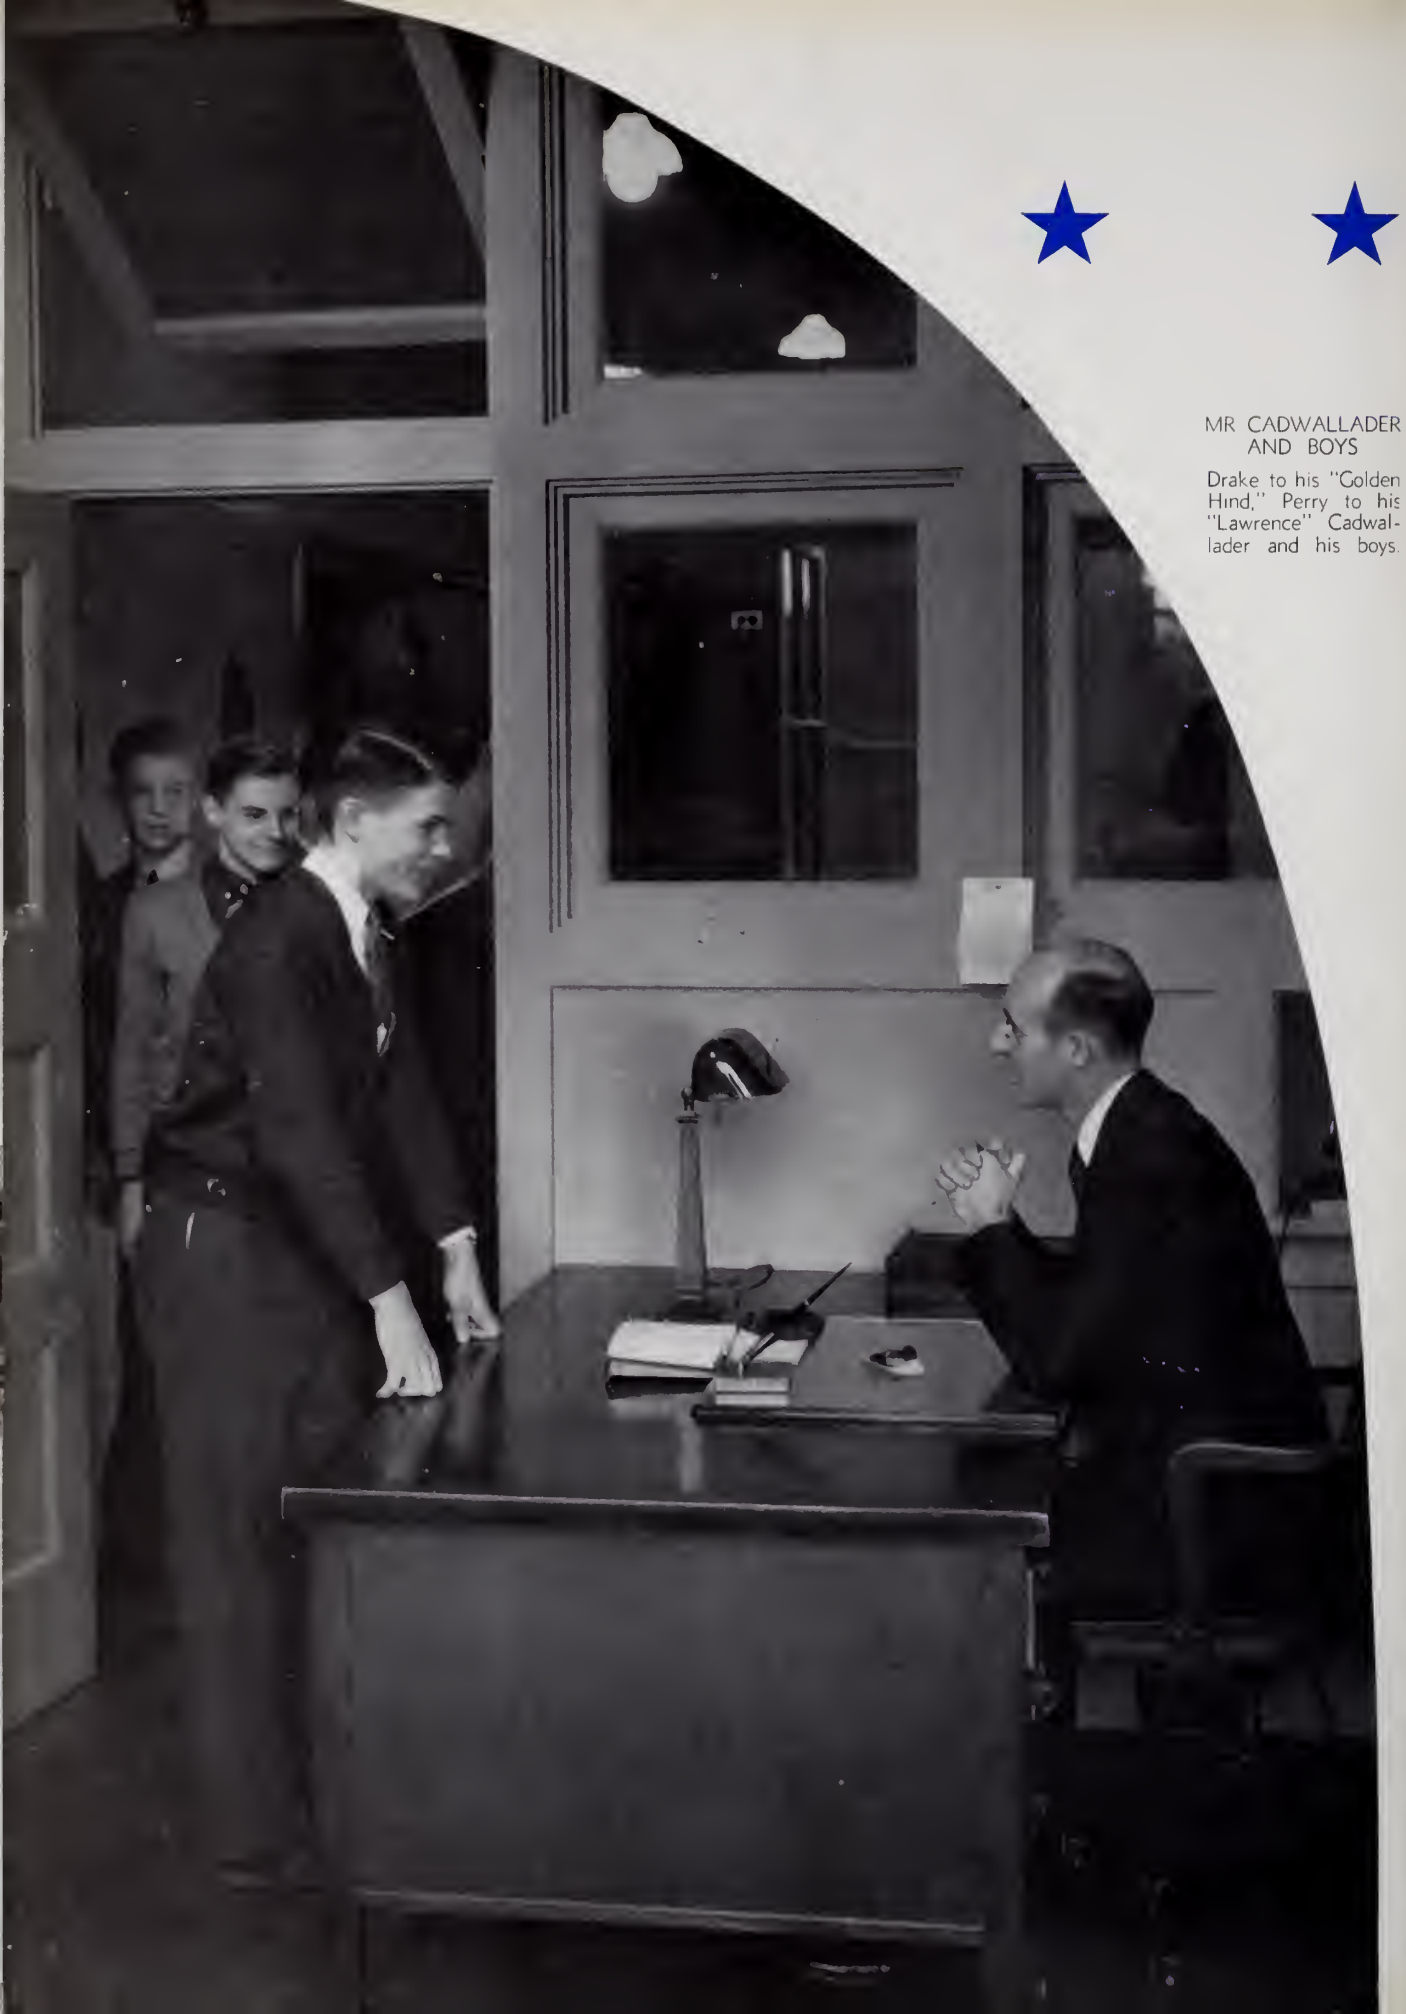
HOME ROOM REPRESENTATIVES



MR CADWALLADER AND BOYS

Drake to his "Golden Hind," Perry to his "Lawrence" Cadwallader and his boys.

MR. PEOPLES AND MISS WHITE

To their intimates, words are unnecessary; to strangers, words are inadequate.

MISS AGERTER DEAN OF GIRLS

To Miss Agerter the girls of Withrow go with their problems and requests, for they know she will heed them with fairness and understanding, and will administer helpful advice. ¶ Miss Agerter's assistant, Miss Nickum, with her friendly smile and genial personality, is a familiar figure to Withrow girls. ¶ Always busy, the switchboard operator is indispensable to the navigation of the ship.

SWITCHBOARD

MR. WILBUR ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Mr. Wilbur, because of his patience, his amiable and sympathetic nature, is esteemed by every member of the Junior High. ¶The office crew, energetic and efficient, is a vital part of the school, for by its execution of important duties, it does its part to keep the ship running smoothly. ¶The gracious, sincere, solicitous soul of Dorothy Spatz will always remain a happy memory to us.

these qualities, among many, make us grateful for the privilege of having known her. ¶During his short service at Withrow Mr. August Brokaw, with his quiet dignity and gentle manner, gained for himself the regard of all his associates.

SEATED—Miss Atkins, Miss Holden, Miss Blasberg, Miss Good, Mr. Sherman. STANDING—Mr. Smith, Mr. Walker, Mr. Baker.

Four years ago we weighed anchor, and started out on our first important voyage. During those years we became able seamen and learned the many important rudiments of sailing. Now we are docking at the end of this journey, and, as captains of our own ships, are embarking for unknown shores. The waves may roll high; the winds may blow hard; weather-beaten mariners may be forced far off their courses. However, our ship was guided by a steadfast hand and manned by an excellent crew. From seasoned veterans we have learned much. We have packed our sea-bags with the priceless treasures of knowledge, ability, self-reliance, and above all, the confidence that we are capable of accomplishing the task which lies before us. Our decks are cleared, our sails are set, we are ready and eager to embark once again for distant horizons.

THEY HAVE SIGNALED, "FULL SPEED AHEAD!"

HAVE DISEMBARKED FROM THEIR VOYAGE ON THE WITHROW.

Now that they have completed their third cruise through high school, the Juniors find their buoyancy and blitheness somewhat tempered by the realization that, in addition to the pleasures which will come to them as seniors, they will have to assume the responsibilities that accompany that coveted position. It is with a quick catch of breath, and a fleeting sigh, that they recognize the short time left them on board - - time in which to see one more cycle of assemblies and football games, one more Thalian Play and Minstrel show - - then off to their own individual ships. In the years that they have spent in service, however, they have received training which will be valuable to them in commanding ships of their own. They have gained a practiced and weathered eye; they have become able mariners, ready to take their places in senior roles.

A CLASS IN FRENCH

With their second year out on the voyage through high school the sophomores now feel that they are experienced and are already aspiring to great positions on board ship. Now that they have their sea legs, they can settle down to getting more out of their trip. No more of those characteristic blunders which blemished their charts as freshmen and from now on all will be smoother sailing. ¶ After one shore leave they returned to their tasks, more eager than ever since they had the advantage over one other class. Full of small airs of self-conscious sophistication they pressed their way onward undaunted, and supremely sure of themselves. They have served their apprenticeship with enthusiastic vim and have made rapid strides toward their goal of being upper classmen, with the privilege of looking back over a year's successful navigation along their charted course.

The Freshman is one of the vast number of plebes on shipboard who have yet the task of "learning the ropes". Usually, he is a follower rather than a leader, but in a few outstanding individuals we see the admirals of tomorrow. ¶The freshman, as the ship leaves port, is foot-loose and fancy-free, unburdened by the responsibilities of the more experienced seamen, yet he sometimes attaches great weight to the most insignificant incidents. He is a hero-worshiper, but he does not feel his own importance overshadowed by his idols. ¶His great enthusiasm is undimmed by the blase' attitude of the upper-classmen. Still, he looks forward with longing eyes to that climax on the ship's log - - that momentous day when he will be awarded the stripes which will mark him in the eyes of all his fellow mariners as a sophomore on that gallant ship The Withrow.

In the time that they spend in the Junior High School the students receive two extremely useful years of training that will enable them to navigate competently their own ship. ¶ In addition to their routine work, the pupils have many extra-curricular activities that occupy their time. Certain traditions have been established, such as the Mothers' and Sons', and Mothers' and Daughters' parties, the Music Festival, and the Tug O'War between seventh and eighth grade boys. There is, too, a monthly paper, TOWER ECHO, that is devoted specifically to Junior High news. Clubs have been organized to appeal to a wide variety of interests - - dramatics, journalism, science, safety, motion picture appreciation, camping, knitting, art, and chess. ¶ Besides supporting activities of their own, these young people find time for anything the Senior High has to offer.

A kaleidoscope of colorful scenes characterized the American Folk Festival given by the Junior High School. Centering the attention of all Cincinnati upon a new type of production in which the entire student body and faculty participated, the festival presented a pageant of the various phases of American folk music divided into seven episodes. First came the primitive rhythms of the Indian, followed by the hymns of the Puritans, and the inspiring tunes of Revolutionary days. The first truly American folk melodies, originated by the Southern negroes, were next presented. A new element was introduced into the music by the lonely, haunting songs of the cowboys. Songs of the sea suggested the early seafaring life of our country and old mountain ballads recalled the traditions brought from England by our adventurous forefathers.

Activities -- What does this recall to your mind? Perhaps fresh autumn days on a football field, perhaps manufacturing words out of thin air, hastily scribbling them on a scrap of paper three minutes before the deadline. Or maybe, with your astronomical turn of mind, unfolding the wonderful mysteries of the heavens. A record of activities is in itself a prosaic thing, but in days to come it will serve to revive thoughts of hours of interesting work -- and hours of pleasure, too. The many things accomplished in these very hours make Withrow what it is; they develop mental and physical coordination and build character, cement fast-forming friendships, and in fact, play a large part in casting the die of the individual to be. By taking part in all these activities we have impressed forever a place in our minds and hearts which will occupy an important position in the mosaic of our memories.

ACTIVITIES BROADEN THE DEEP STREAM OF LEARNING

President—H. Magly

The members of Literatas are selected from freshman and sophomore girls having ability and interest in creative writing. Aside from the purpose of increasing the knowledge and enjoyment of literature, the club has many social functions under the direction of its capable adviser, Miss Freeman.

TOP—B. A. Andrews, S. Becker, M. Reichelderfer, H. Gregory, H. Magly, Adelaide Perrine, L. Taylor, R. Klug, A. Bauer, R. Stites, E. Bayes, J. Francis, D. Hall, H. Gaissert.

In the shadows of the ship's library, one may encounter a group of club members engrossed in fascinating literature, affording not only an insight into the languages but also the beauties, romance, and customs of nations far beyond the horizon. So vivid is the description that they visualize themselves witnessing bull fights in Spain, roaming the green hills of Germany, inspecting the incredible remains of ancient Rome, and holding a rendezvous with the peoples across the sea.

Tower Y and Withrow Club are both social service clubs which have as their purposes the promotion of the welfare of the school, and the creation and maintenance of high standards of character among fellow-students. Tower Y, an organization affiliated with the Y. W. C. A., is composed of girls from junior and senior classes only; Withrow Club, however, selects its active members from the three upper classes, and its associate members from the freshman group. Both groups have bi-weekly meetings.

Sigma Gamma is an honorary club whose members are selected from senior boys on the basis of scholarship and citizenship. The more important functions of the group are suggesting improvements in the school, helping discouraged freshmen, and guiding visitors around the building.

We are in the office of Mr. Seay, the ship's purser. Here we see many busy people, and hear the clatter of billing and adding machines. Money is being handled with all the skill and dexterity of a bank cashier. The fact that the day's receipts are more than a mere trifle is proved by the presence of two expressmen who vigilantly convey their precious load to the bank vaults. ¶ With the help of his many capable workers Mr. Ziegler operates our school bank where students watch with pleasure as their pennies grow into dollars.

The blare of trumpets, the report of a gun, the sound of military music - - all are part of the martial air of the band. No football season is complete without it, no year consummated without a band concert and assembly, and no account of the band concluded without praise of its competent and smiling director, "Smittie".

TOWER NEWS REPORTERS

Spring marks four gala events in the lives of the Withrow mariners: the Concert, the Minstrel Show, and the dramatic productions. ¶The well-known Withrow Minstrel Show again brought pleasure to thousands of spectators. Through the splendid cooperation of all who participated under the commanding leadership of Smittie, the performance once more surpassed that of the previous year. ¶The concert, again upholding the musical tradition of Cincinnati, had for one of its special numbers the "Festival Overture" by Sidney Durst, a Cincinnati composer. Mr. Surdo's talent in producing a concert of inspiring classical music was displayed at its best. ¶Thalian attained a high dramatic goal in presenting "Big Hearted Herbert." The crowd demonstrated its appreciation in genuine laughter and applause. The casts of both nights well deserved the praises.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL STARS TWINKLE ON THE STAGE.

Joe Wilson
President

The back stage confusion of scents, sounds and colors before the curtain rises, the applause of an audience, enthusiastic as Broadway first-nighters, the satisfaction in a technichal task well done, and visions of curtain calls -- these are a few of the thrills of the Thalian players under the capable direction of Miss Marjorie Rosenberger.

Surging onward with a strength that was not to be denied, Withrow's mighty Tigers clawed their way to a city championship. A glance at the year's record will speak louder of the team's achievement than any words that could be written here. Only twice did the Orange and Black suffer a reverse and each time it was at the hand of an out-of-town foe. Stivers of Dayton defeated the Tigers at Dayton, while the Middletown "Middies" vanquished the Kingmen in their own backyard. Among intra-city rivals, Withrow was invincible. The Tigers beat Walnut Hills, Western Hills, Woodward, and Hughes in rapid succession. The game with Hughes proved to be the thriller of the year as the Withrow aggregation scored in the final few minutes of play to win 7-0. By virtue of this victory Withrow claimed the city championship. Such stars as Redeker, Bierman, Eccles, Brunskill, Maerki, Pennington and others have made our team what it is. To the coaches goes the credit for training and organizing the available raw material so that eleven men were magically transformed into a single, strong, efficient machine. Hail the champions!

In order to give the majority of students an opportunity to participate in some form of organized athletics, a schedule of intramural basketball was arranged. In a series of round-robin tournaments, teams representing each boys' home room, vied with each other for both class and school honors. After the champions of the four grades had been chosen, they, in turn, competed to determine the outstanding home room team of the school. In the final round, the juniors of Room 313 defeated the seniors of Room 312 by a score of 17-5 and won the pennant.

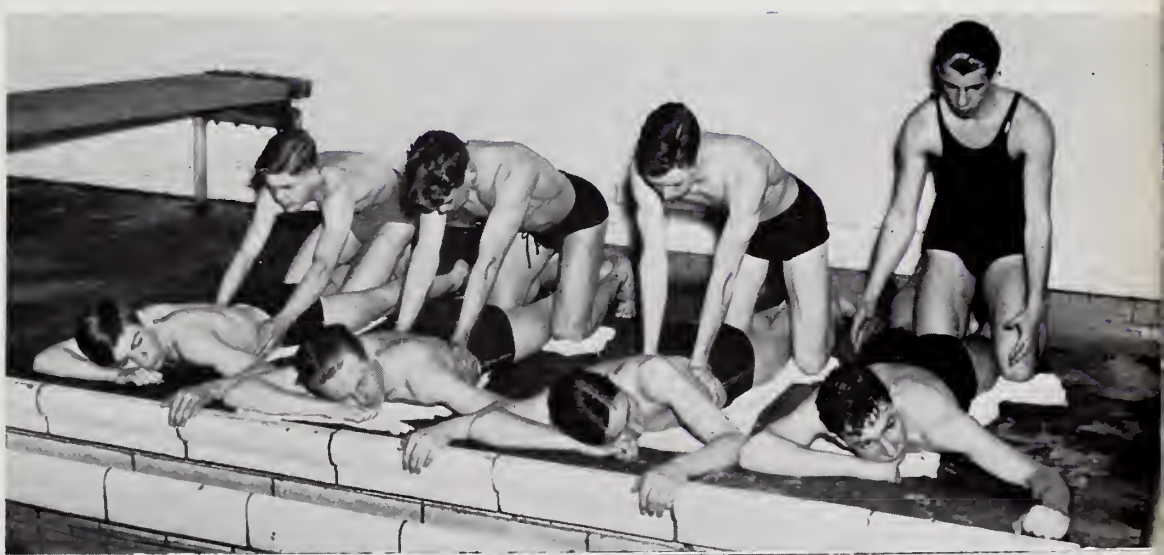
In competition with a group of unusually fine high school swimming teams, Coach Wirth's mermen never failed to bring honor to the fair name of Withrow.



BASKETBALL TEAM

One of the youngest and most aggressive Tiger basketball teams in years represented Withrow this season. The fact that five lettermen will return next year points the way to a most successful future.

Under the supervision of Mr. Wirth, volleyball has been elevated to a position of new-found popularity. The varsity squad concluded a successful season by placing second in a league composed of teams of unusual talent.

VOLLEYBALL TEAM

J. Scott, J. Ortner, B. Von Holle, F. Wolfinger, H. Pennington, J. Thompson.

With five letter men of last year as its nucleus, Coach King's baseball team carried on the tradition of fine athletic organizations at Withrow. At the time of publication, the squad had not lost a game. Rapid development of the rookies has made the prospects for next year's team look unusually bright.

Besides providing wholesome outdoor exercise and a chance to apply the fine code of sportsmanship, golf, as a varsity sport, gives players a chance to test their skill against that of others and to participate in inter-scholastic contests. ¶ Although the track season was delayed in starting because of the shortened school term, the prospects were good from the first as far as team material was concerned. Seven men of the 1936 championship team returned to form the basis of this year's squad.

Anchors aweigh! The old barge Withrow steamed away as soon as a record breaking crew had poured over the bridge. Freshmen with mouths gaping, wandered around rather aimlessly finding that what they thought was a civics class was only the swimming pool. A few days later the whole school including the faculty stampeded the lunchroom and sampled the cuisine as though they hadn't eaten all summer. Maybe they hadn't. ¶When the football season opened, the Tigers, garbed in their very brilliant orange suits, staggered out on deck to trim Xavier. ¶Then Parents' Night came, when father and mother found that fond child was doing much better or much worse than they expected. ¶As the voyage continued, work was done on remodeling the stage. Although we thought we never would have another assembly, nevertheless, the work finally was finished and a good job it was. ¶Excitement was keyed to a high pitch at the famous pigskin battle with Hughes which Withrow won 7-0. ¶Before school was closed for the Christmas holidays Thalian presented an impressive Christmas pantomime. ¶After the mistletoe festivities the students came back and settled into the old groove and began preparation for exams. But then came an event that will make this year memorable forever. A flood, timed to the psychological moment, necessitated the closing of school the Friday before exam week. Two weeks later when the students reluctantly came back to school they found that exams had been canceled. The sorrow caused by this announcement was very noticeable on the visages of students. ¶In the spring the Withrow Players and Thalian presented the comedies "Charm School" and "Big Hearted Herbert". Possibly the stellar honors for the year must be divided between the Minstrel Show, which ran for a record-breaking five nights, and the Annual Concert which was superbly executed. ¶Then with an impossible swiftness came the Sigma Gamma Prom, Class Day, and graduation, leaving the seniors pleasant memories.

The Hub of Activity

Wherever you go, whatever you do, you see the telephone in the center of things, day and night. Without it business and social activity would slow down to a walk. Imagine a community without the fire and police protection the telephone provides. What suffering and inconvenience would follow a sudden end to this quick contact with doctors, druggists, merchants and service institutions!

Your telephone, constant in serving, carries on.
